Short intro

Podcasts have become a widespread social trend over the last decade. It is a good way how to entertain yourself and get educated at the same time. People like to listen to stories and for us is this a good way how to spread the ideas of tolerance and inclusion in society. By combining the human library method and podcasting techniques we can make people think and help them to see different points of view, especially in the online world where we can see or hear hateful or stereotypical views on every day basis.

Our objective is to show youth workers the potential of using a combination of non-formal education methods and modern techniques. We believe that all this can be combined in the creation of a solidarity project aimed at breaking down stereotypes in society through dialogue in an online environment with a person suffering from prejudice in society.

This project consists of 2 phases. First, the training course focused on gaining the necessary knowledge based on the objectives. After arrival back home participants are supposed to put the know-how into action and one of them should come back for the second phase - the evaluation meeting.
